New Members Probation Rule

By becoming a member of Goosedale Model Flying Club, New Members (and those who are rejoining after a break of membership of 12 months or more) are agreeing to an initial probationary membership period of 3 months. This probationary period allows the new member to be assessed by the club in regard to their conduct and suitability for continued membership for the remainder of the membership year.

If at any time during this probationary period, the majority of the club's voting committee are not satisfied with the new member's suitability as a club member (due, for example to a repeat breach of club rules, or a gross breach of club rules, or through actions bringing the club or sport into disrepute) then the probationary member will be advised of this in writing.

The letter will inform them that the club's committee has decided not to grant them full membership to the Goosedale MFC and that their membership will be immediately revoked. As a consequence they will no longer be able to fly models at the Goosedale MFC site. Their remaining membership payment will be refunded on a pro rata basis. Those who fail their membership probation will not be permitted to reapply for club membership for a period of 3 years from the start date of their currently revoked / expired probationary membership period.

It should be noted that following the probationary period, members are still subject to the club's rules on Discipline, which apply at all times to all members.
